Tarot— 10: Wheel of Fortune

(Large Format)

Tarot Series

By Michele Sayetta

From out of hiding comes the Fool, into the sunlight, as if being pulled up from some low, dark point on a wheel. It is time for a change. Staff in hand, she heads back out into the world, expecting nothing. But, strangely, things seem to happen to her as the hours go by, good things. Wandering by water wheel a woman offers her a drink in a golden chalice, and then urges her to keep the cup, just because she likes her; as she wanders by a wind-mill, she stops to watch a young man swinging a sword; when he expresses his admiration of the weapon, the young man presses it into her hand, insisting that she take it.

And finally, when he comes upon a rich merchant sitting in a wagon, right over one of the wheels, the man hands her a bag of money. "I like giving away money," explains the Merchant, "and I decided, just randomly, that the tenth person who walked past me today would get this money. You're the tenth." The Fool hardly thought she could still be surprised, but she is. It is as if everything good that she ever did in her life is being paid back to her, three-fold. All luck this day is hers.
