The figure displays a 10x10 grid of 100 small plots, each showing a different pattern of symbols (dots, lines, and numbers) arranged in a grid. The plots are organized into 10 rows and 10 columns, with row and column indices labeled on the left and top respectively. The patterns vary significantly, showing different distributions of symbols and their interactions.

The rows are labeled 160, 170, 180, 190, 200, 210, 220, and 230. The columns are labeled 130, 140, 150, 160, 170, and 180.

The patterns in the plots are complex and varied, often showing a mix of symbols and their interactions. Some plots show a clear grid of symbols, while others show more abstract, non-grid-like patterns. The patterns are often arranged in a way that suggests a relationship between the row and column indices and the specific pattern shown.
